Brazilian airframer Embraer and German auto icon Porsche operate on opposite ends of the globe and the transportation spectrum. But they do have one thing in common: building luxurious vehicles that go very fast, and now they're teaming up for a limited-edition pairing of their top models.

Named "Duet", the pairing features a meticulously crafted Embraer Phenom 300E and Porsche 911 Turbo S in the first partnership between the two firms. The matching private jet and supercar combo are designed to complement each other in their respective arenas with the 911 Turbo S dominating the road and the Phenom 300E dominating the sky.

The Phenom 300 is one of Embraer's best-selling private aircraft series, originally entering service in 2010. Its performance in the marketplace in addition to the skies earned it the title of "most-delivered light jet" in 2019 for the eighth consecutive year.

The design of this special-edition Porsche Design 1919 Globetimer UTC incorporates an artificial horizon, a cockpit instrument used by pilots to ensure the aircraft is flying straight and level, as well as assist with maneuvers.
